Sun-drenched beaches sit next to the desert wilderness in Aruba, one of the most popular destinations in the Caribbean. With warm and sunny weather all year round, the island seems frozen in a timeless holiday atmosphere, with turquoise ocean waters washing over the soft warm sand. Nightlife bursts with Latin music and exotic sounds, and exciting shopping and dining await at every corner. Stronger waves break against the eastern coast, deserted and swept over by wind — exploring it will lead the most adventurous visitors to spectacular vistas.

THE ISLAND

byvalet / Shutterstock.com

Sheltered as it is from oceanic winds and tides, the northwestern area of Aruba has become a holiday haven, perfected by the tourism industry. Whether swimming in the calm blue water, snorkelling, venturing to do some water sports, or joining beautiful sunset cruises, it's quite difficult to get bored there. Funny flamingos and refreshing divi trees are characteristic parts of the scenery. You'll find the best entertainment in the popular areas of Palm and Eagle Beach, and in Oranjestad, the charming and compact capital city.

When looking for accommodation in this popular area, you have two main options. The high rise hotels are huge beachfront palaces located in the busiest and most central position. One mile north from there, low rise hotels offer a more private and relaxed atmosphere.

A visit to the more genuine town of San Nicolas, in the southern area, will be rewarded with hidden food gems and beautiful views. Reach the wind-swept Eastern coast and you'll find yourself in an undeveloped natural treasure (which can, of course, be explored as part of plenty of guided tours).

Aruba has a fascinating history of pre-Columbian tribes, colonization, and peoples' encounters.

Arawak Amerindians came to the island around 1,000 BC and stayed for millennia; traces of their presence are left in the ancient wall drawings of Fontein Cave. After being discovered by European explorers, the island was colonized by Spain; fortunately, it was never big on slave trade, because the climate was too dry for plantation settlements. The Netherlands took over in the 17th century and ruled until the first free elections in 1986. Oranjestad preserves beautifully restored Dutch architecture from the Colonial period.

DO & SEE

Steve Photography / Shutterstock.com

Unwind on the pristine beaches, forget about the rut of everyday life exploring the dining and nightlife scenes, or catch some thrills taking part in water sports and outdoor exploration. However you decide to experience it, Aruba has all the trappings of an all-around perfect vacation destination.

Palm Beach

One of the main hubs for cheerful tourist life, surrounded by resorts and full of things to do, this beach is likely the one you saw in the ads for vacations in Aruba. Swim in the calm, sparkling blue water, take long walks along the fine sand of the shoreline, and seize the occasion to do some people-watching. Be aware that the beach can get crowded.

Internet: www.aruba.com/us/explore/palm-beach

Eagle Beach

Another much-loved tourist spot, Eagle Beach is located walking distance from the low-rise hotel area, and it's quieter and usually less crowded than Palm Beach. It looks stunning with its fine sugary sand, and is the perfect spot to relax under the shade of umbrellas or the characteristic divi trees. Bars and cafes await right on the sand, and snorkeling here is great.

Baby Beach

To find refuge from tourist masses, head to this beautiful, secluded beach in the island's very south. Reaching the place will take around 30 minutes by car, and some patience if you're driving your own vehicle - signage isn't too clear. However, it's worth the exploration: locals love Baby Beach because it's calm and less crowded. Its waters are clean and good for swimming, and the local fauna is beautiful, featuring gorgeous tropical fish and sea turtles.

Arikok National Park

Apart from the well-decorated western touristic area, Aruba offers miles of a breathtakingly wild desert land, protected by the Arikok national reserve. Visit this windy, atmospheric place, and see some of the island's most loved natural attractions. You can choose to visit the park by yourself, by renting a jeep and using a sat nav, or to join a guided tour. Either way, prepare for an intense, adventurous journey.

Conchi Natural Pool

Aruba's uncharted-tropical-island vibes are at their best in this natural pool right at the oceanfront. Conchi is located in the Arikok Natural Park, completely uncultivated, and far away from the touristic areas. Plunge into the turquoise water and discover the beautiful tropical fish, while waves crash against high rocks that surround the pool.

Fontein Cave

Channel your inner Tom Sawyer and visit these impressive rock formations inside the Arikok National Park. Between stalagmites hanging over your head and natural limestone columns, you will also catch a glimpse of cave art by the Arawak indigenous people, dating back to the first millennium BC. Visitors are only allowed to explore the entrance area, but the cave spreads for miles inside the rocks. A short guided tour is available.

Andicuri Beach

Andicuri's wild beauty makes it a unique spot on the island. It sits on the windy, underdeveloped eastern coast, inside the Arikok National Park. An organized tour is probably the best way to reach it. Its crystal waters are moved by strong waves, which make them great for experienced surfers and not safe for swimming. There are no amenities, and you should bring your own food.

Aruba Archaeological Museum

If you're passionate about history and want to use every occasion to learn more, even on vacation, visit the local museum in Oranjestad. The displays focus on the pre-colonial period and Amerindian culture, and it's located inside an elegant colonial house. Some of the artefacts in the exhibition were crafted millennia ago.

DINING

Cor Meenderinck / Shutterstock.com

Aruban cuisine is a mouth-watering fusion of cultures — mostly Spanish, Dutch, French, and African. Specialities like goat cheese and funchi, the local variation of polenta, are must-tries. Dining in Aruba is also about the setting and the experience: you will find restaurants located right on the sand, or in picturesque manors. There are plenty of cultural influences, and — as hard as it can be to believe it — very affordable options.

Barefoot Restaurant

Feel the warm sand under your feet and admire the sunset while enjoying yummy food. This breezy yet stylish restaurant is located right on the beach and offers fresh ingredients and good wines. The staff is extremely helpful with dietary restrictions.

Omakase Japanese Sushi Bar

Sushi lovers don't panic, not even if vegetarian: you won't suffer from withdrawal in Aruba. Omakase is an elegant and affordable sushi bar near the beach, and it has earned many enthusiastic reviews. The concept of 'omakase' means diners leave it up to the chef to select the dishes they'll be served, which adds an extra element of excitement to the experience.

CAFES

inobjective / Shutterstock.com

While relaxing on the beach all day, or jumping from one exciting experience to another, you will likely need a proper coffee break. Stay hydrated with fresh fruit smoothies, find sweet comfort in local desserts like kesio (a local version of creme caramel), or go full tropical with the banana chips snacks. Also, discover some great spots in the less touristy parts of the island.

Santos Coffee With Soul

littlenySTOCK / Shutterstock.com

Aruba is not the place to go for great discounts, but it offers many rare finds. Dutch porcelain and chocolate, as well as Cuban cigars, are especially good purchases here. To get something unique, rather than run-of-the-mill mass-produced souvenirs, head to quality jewellery shops and art galleries. The island welcomes visitors with a rich array of colourful, well-kept shopping malls, which also work as entertainment hubs. Locals love shopping on Oranjestad's main street, Caya G.F. Betico Croes, and in the rest of the downtown area.

Renaissance Mall & Marketplace

This well-decorated, expansive shopping centre in the main town offers every kind of shop: luxury clothing and accessories at Louis

Vuitton and more affordable choices at the Mall, along with souvenirs and local arts and craft work at the Marketplace. It is set in a central location, near the beautiful Renaissance Marina. You will also find plenty of places to relax, such as cafes, eateries and spas.

TOURIST INFORMATION

Keith Muratori / Shutterstock.com

Passport / Visa

Citizens of the European Union member-states, the majority of countries in the Americas and Europe, as well as Australia, New Zealand, Japan, and a handful of others do not require a visa for stays of up to 90 days.

Visitors of other nationalities might need to apply for a visa in advance. The visa for Aruba is not an equivalent to a Schengen Visa, and does not allow holders to enter the European part of the Netherlands.

Visitors will need to provide a passport that is valid for the duration of the stay and has some unused pages. They also need to have a valid Embarkation and Disembarkation card (ED-Card), a valid return ticket, and the necessary documents for returning to the country of origin. Finally, they can be requested to demonstrate that they have arranged for accommodation in Aruba, and that they have the financial means to support themselves while staying there.

Best Time to Visit

The weather in Aruba is always nice, with an average temperature of around 28°C (82°F) at all times of the year.

Budget-wise, the best time to visit Aruba is from April to December, during the low season. During the rest of the year, prices increase significantly as more tourists come down from the north to escape winter.

The perceived temperature is a bit hotter in September, when trade winds cease.

Queen Beatrix International Airport (AUA)

The modern Aruba Queen Beatrix International Airport is located in the western part of the island, 5 km from the downtown area and 7-10 km from the resorts area. It is served by a number of daily or weekly flights from North and South America, the EU, United Kingdom, and many others.

The airport tax ("PFC", Passenger Facility Charge) is usually included in the price of the flights, but it's worth checking.

Check-in for flights to the US is 3 hours before departure; check-in for other flights can be 2-3 hours before departure according to your airline. If your flight is going to depart during a peak hour (Friday, Saturday and Sunday from 11 am to 3 pm), arrive earlier.

There are many different ways to get to and from the airport.

Aruba's public bus service, Arubus, has several lines stopping at the airport. You can take any of these to Oranjestad, reach the town's bus station and change to another line to reach your hotel; many are served by line 10.

You will find car rental offices in front of the arrival terminal; alternatively, take the shuttle bus outside the airport to reach other car rentals that are not located at the airport.

Cruise Terminal

The Aruba Cruise Terminal is located on the Western coast of the island, a few minutes walk away from the centre of the capital city Oranjestad.

Right at the terminal you will find information booths and ATMs. Shops are also available inside the terminal.

The public bus service in Aruba, run by Arubus, is good and affordable, and the Oranjestad bus terminal is located a few steps away from the port, on Lloyd G. Smith Boulevard.

However, you can also decide to hail a cab at the taxi rank on the left of the terminal exit.

Alternatively, find car rentals in front of the terminal exit.

If you're visiting Aruba during a cruise and only have one day to spend on the island, follow our suggested itinerary to experience the best of it.

Aruba is mostly well-known for its beautiful touristic beaches. Eagle Beach, one of the best, is quite close to the ship terminal, and boasts flamingos, cute turtles, typical divi divi trees and plenty of facilities. For a morning of perfect beach life, take the Arubus line 10 from the Oranjestad bus terminal and get off at the Eagle Beach stop.

If you're still in the mood for touristic beaches in the afternoon, visit the very popular Palm Beach (bus line 10 to Malmok, stop at Palm Beach Plaza). To take a break before getting there, spend an hour at the colourful Butterfly Farm (same bus, stop at Divi Resort).

If you're looking for a more adventurous day, save the afternoon for a tour of the wilder Eastern part of the island. A convenient solution is booking a half-day guided tour. Swim in the breathtaking Natural Pool, just in front of the ocean, with colourful fish under the surface. Most tours depart directly from the cruise ship terminal and brings you back there at the end of the trip.

However, you decide to experience the island, take some time to explore the picturesque Oranjestad city centre. It only takes 15 minutes on foot from the terminal to Oranjestad's cute main street, Caya G.F. Beltico Croes. Here you can admire colourful Dutch revival architecture and typical palm trees; this is also where you'll find some of the best shops on the island. Another good shopping and entertainment hub is the whimsical Royal Plaza mall, just a 5 minutes walk from the cruise ship terminal.

Public Transport

Public transport in Aruba is inexpensive and easy to use. The Arubus service covers Oranjestad and the resort areas, with stops at beaches and supermarkets; it also reaches the airport. Check their website for schedules and ticket prices. The bus line 10 to Malmok is probably the most convenient to reach hotels and points of interest near Eagle and Palm Beach.

The central bus station is located in downtown Oranjestad, next to the Royal Plaza shopping mall, on Lloyd G. Smith Boulevard. The bus runs every 15 minutes from 5:45 am to 6 pm and every 40 minutes from 6 pm to 11:30 pm.

Arubus also operate a streetcar route that runs from the Port of Call, through the downtown area, along Schelpstraat, Havenstraat and Caya Betico Croes. The tram loops at Plaza Nicky.

Taxi

Taxi fares in Aruba are set according to the destinations; meters are not used. An additional charge is applied after 11 pm, on Sundays and official holidays. The cabs bear a "TX" sign to indicate that they are licensed.

Taxis are often available at hotels and popular sights; otherwise, it is best to hail them by phone. If you're making an excursion to a less popular spot, you may want to arrange with the same taxi driver to pick you up and bring you back to the hotel when you're done.
